

Revenue model & unit economics

A committee-ready note on how Metrico earns money and how we think about early unit economics. Honest early-stage framing — not fake customer metrics.

Model / assumptions — not live KPIs

Figures below describe the product's pricing ladder and a simple early-stage model. They are not reported CAC, LTV, or MRR from a large paying base. Demo data is labeled demo and is not paying traction.

Revenue model

Metrico is a SaaS product sold on annual subscription plans. Teams start free and upgrade when they need more projects or deeper modules.

- Primary revenue today: paid plan upgrades (Plus, Pro, Ark) on annual prepaid billing.
- Secondary (later, only if product demand proves it): extra seats, add-on modules, or white-label / agency packaging — not claimed as live revenue streams yet.
- We sell software subscriptions — not custom agency rebuilds per project.

Pricing ladder (what each plan unlocks)

Limits and feature gates match the live product configuration. European list prices are annual euro amounts; Persian checkout shows local Toman equivalents.

Starter — Free

1 project · up to 15 contacts · up to 10 reminders · core unit sales and expense tools. Entry freemium tier for evaluation and very small portfolios.

Plus — €50 / year

Up to 3 projects · PDF reports · backup/restore · chat · maps · owner portal · project drawings gallery. Unlocks the full day-to-day sales + owner loop.

Pro — €100 / year

Up to 10 projects · project accounting · inventory · contracts · tax prep views · KML export. For teams that need deeper site finance and materials.

Ark — €150 / year

High project ceiling (effectively unlimited for mid-size portfolios) · energy tools · takeoff / quantity estimating. Showcase tier; the labeled demo runs at Ark for evaluation.

Checkout paths

Billing is productized in the app; gateway readiness differs by region.

- Iran / Persian checkout: Zarinpal path exists in the payment function; live merchant configuration may still be pending — orders can be saved when the provider is not configured.
- Europe / English checkout: card billing is under development. Evaluators can email hello@metrico.app for EU billing, or use a founder upgrade code.
- Discount codes apply to purchase and renewal where checkout is available.

Demo versus paid

Anyone can start on Starter free. Partners and committee evaluators can also use the labeled demo account (demo@metrico.app) for a read-only Ark-level walkthrough — sample data, not paying customers. Password is provided by founders on request.

Unit economics (early model)

Early-stage software: keep assumptions modest and explicit. These are planning targets for a freemium SaaS, not audited live metrics.

ARPU (annual)

List prices: €50 / €100 / €150 per year for Plus / Pro / Ark. Blended ARPU depends on mix; a conservative early mix weighted toward Plus/Pro keeps ARPU in a low three-digit euro range or below.

Gross margin (software SaaS)

Typical pure-software margins are high after hosting and payment fees. We model a credible mid-high software margin once billing is live — not 99% fantasy, and not consulting-heavy COGS.

CAC & LTV (targets)

Target assumption for early GTM: keep CAC low via founder-led demos, content, and partner intros (low three-digit euros or less per paying account). LTV is annual prepaid × expected multi-year retention; even 2–3 years of Plus/Pro can support a healthy LTV:CAC if CAC stays lean. These are model targets until paid cohorts exist.

Cash flow shape

Annual prepaid plans improve early cash collection versus monthly. Freemium lowers acquisition friction; paid conversion is the primary growth lever.

Path: freemium → paid

Learn in a pilot market with real project workflows → convert active teams to Plus/Pro/Ark → expand regionally with the same SaaS core → complete EU-ready billing for international sales. Scale is software leverage, not headcount per project.

In one list

- SaaS, annual plans: Starter free → Plus €50 → Pro €100 → Ark €150.
- Primary revenue: upgrades; future add-ons only if demand proves them.
- Iran: Zarinpal path; EU card billing still under development.
- Free Starter + labeled demo for evaluation; no fake paying-customer claims.
- Unit economics shown as early model/assumptions for committee — not live KPI dashboards.
